

Can we afford sustainable development? Effective ways to finance development

26 February 2014 at 15:00 – 17:00
University of Helsinki, Finland
Fabianinkatu 33, Small Hall (4th floor)

14:45 – 15:00 Coffee

15:00 – 15:15 Introductions
University of Helsinki, Barry Gills
European Commission, Stina Soewarta

15:15 – 16:00 Simon Zadek
Co-Director of UNEP's Inquiry into Design Options
for a Sustainable Financial System initiative

16:00 – 16:45 Moderated discussion
Comments to the lecture by Yannick Glemarec, UN Multi-Partner Trust Fund Office
Q&A with the room and online audience

16:45 Closing remarks

Moderated by Carl-Gustav Lindén, University of Helsinki

Registration by Feb 24th 2014: <https://elomake.helsinki.fi/lomakkeet/48378/lomake.html>

Millions of active citizens and the world leaders are discussing what should be the development priorities in the coming decades. A consensus emerges on the need to ensure greater environmental sustainability in development. It is not yet however clear how the world should achieve these goals and what should be the financing mechanisms. More often the questions are raised on to the role of traditional donors and the official development assistance in supporting development. What are the ways to finance sustainable development? Simon Zadek's Kapuscinski Development Lecture will answer these and other questions.

Top global thinkers deliver their Kapuscinski Lectures on development in the initiative organised by the European Commission, the United Nations Development Programme and partner universities.

Livestreaming: <http://kapuscinskilectures.eu>

Ask your questions via <http://twitter.com/kapulectures> using #KDL

Empowered lives.
Resilient nations.

UNIVERSITY OF HELSINKI
FACULTY OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

